What Are the Main Threats of Orang-utans?

By Lucinda Sou

The main threats towards orangutans are people cutting down their habitat and changing it into a planation for palm oil. Palm oil is very popular around the world because we have palm oil in all our foods such as oreo, chips, ice cream and biscuits. It is also used in products such as soap and toothpaste.

Everyone should be responsible in looking after our environment and animals. STOP cutting the trees in our beautiful rainforests, start replanting trees and think about the products we eat and use.